

M. J. Khan

Former Houston City Council Member

Masrur Javed "MJ" Khan was elected to the Houston City Council in December 2003 and served three terms. He was the first Muslim elected to the council of a major American city. During his tenure at Houston City Council he worked tirelessly to improve access to healthcare and affordable housing among many other accomplishments. He has been a supporter of the Shifa Clinic and Ibn Sina Clinics as well as numerous other organizations including ISGH, the Islamic Society of Greater Houston, where he served as president.

