HOMELESS DOES NOT MEAN VOTELESS

- Persons experiencing homelessness can register and vote in Texas, as long as they meet the five qualifications that apply to everyone.
- People who regularly stay at a shelter can give that shelter’s address on their voter registration form.
- Your mailing address does not have to be the same as the residence address. The registrant can use any address where they are able to pick up mail. A post office box, shelter, helping agency, church or a friend or relative’s address are all suitable.
- One of the forms of photo ID (or one of the acceptable alternative forms of identification) must be presented in order to vote.

PREVIOUSLY CONVICTED? OFF PAPER? YOU CAN VOTE

- In the state of Texas, your right to vote is restored immediately upon completion of your sentence, including parole and probation, in addition to any fines/costs, or restitution. You must be “off paper,” and meet the five qualifications that apply to all voters.
- To restore your right to vote, you have to register to vote by the election deadline! If you were registered to vote before the felony conviction, you will have to register again.
- As long as they are not on parole or probation and do not have any fines related to another offense, registered voters who are confined in county jail may vote. They may request a Ballot by Mail be sent to the jail if they expect to be there when elections are held or, if there is a polling location at the jail, they may vote in person.
